It actually goes without saying

Please select tours according to your ability. It is especially important to realistically assess your fitness level and/or the battery capacity of your E-bike. Allow for breaks. Please note that E-bikes have an enormous dead weight due to their motors and batteries: this means a significantly increased braking distance and it makes pushing much more difficult, too. Please be considerate of walkers, hikers and other road users. And be sure to observe route closures and traffic regulations, too.

Thank you very much!

Taking bicycles with you on local public passenger transport

As a guest in Füssen, the Füssen Card (the guest card of Füssen) allows you to travel on numerous local public transport lines at no extra cost. In addition, bicycles can be taken along free of charge on all buses. Please note that bicycles can only be transported if capacity is available, however. On busy routes, such as those to the royal castles, there may be no more room for bicycles on the buses at peak times. There is no legal entitlement to

Signposting of cycle paths

Small intermediate signposts are provided for better guidance. Explicitly signposted tours are identified directly on the signposts by the logos that appear by the descriptions.

The cycling and MTB signage used by our Austrian neighbours in Tyrol differs from that in Germany, but the marking for MTB difficulty levels is the same.
